

FCC rules should serve the people, not just special interest groups. I fear monopolies. For example, here in Jacksonville FL two of the major TV networks, ABC and NBC, are owned and operated by the same distributor. This is not good. A large portion of our radion stations are owned by the same company, Clear Channel. There is a sameness and lack of imagination, with more emphasis on national and world events and less on local affairs. FCC rules should not be changed to allow a distributor to dominate or monopolize the market.
